

Exercise 2.5.6

Kevin Martin
CIS675 - Syracuse University

January 15, 2020

The worst case running time for selection sort is also $O(n^2)$ as it could potentially compare every element in the array against every other element in the array multiple times. Here it would need to make $O(n)$ swaps as well.

The worst case running time occurs when the list is in reverse order, but it is still $O(n^2)$.